GENERAL MANAGER'S COMMENTS

The General Manager of Community Services RECOMMENDS approval of the above recommendations noting that these recommendations respond to public and staff concerns regarding the treatment of animals and enforcement of regulations. The proposed fee changes are consistent with the Animal Control Services Strategic Plan, adopted by Council in May 2004.

COUNCIL POLICY

The Vancouver Charter empowers the City to establish a pound and to regulate the keeping of dogs and other animals. Pursuant to this power, the City has enacted the Animal Control By-Law.

PURPOSE AND SUMMARY

The purpose of this report is to seek Council's approval for a new Animal Control By-Law and amendments to the License By-Law and Noise Control By-Law relating to dogs. Council is also requested to consider prohibiting inhumane rodeo activities and practices.

The report presents two categories of changes with respect to the Animal Control By-Law. The first category contains by-law changes that can be implemented now under existing Vancouver Charter authority. These include implementing tighter regulations for dogs and new regulations around inappropriate dog behaviour and the conditions in which dogs may be kept; ensuring cost recovery for Animal Control Services; increasing penalties and fines for by-law breaches; making other miscellaneous changes and generally modernizing the By-Law.

The second category contains proposed by-law changes that require amendments to the Vancouver Charter. These include micro-chipping and establishing higher fees for vicious dogs.

The report also addresses an amendment to the License By-Law which would prohibit the deployment of guard dogs onto public property. With no formal training standards for security guard dogs in the Province, obedience and response of these dogs is called into question. Ensuring that guard dogs remain on the private property they patrol will eliminate any possible disruption to the deployment of properly trained Police Service Dogs and interference with members of the public.

Finally, on January 18, 2005, Council requested staff to provide a memorandum on whether the City currently bans rodeos and if not, whether the staff report on Animal Control could include consideration of the possibility of banning rodeos. Although there has not been a rodeo held in Vancouver for quite some time, rodeos are not specifically banned in the City. Therefore, Council is asked in this report to consider the prohibition of inhumane rodeo practices/activities which physically manipulate animals not normally aggressive, provoking these animals into displaying irrational and dangerous behaviour for the benefit of the viewing audience.

BACKGROUND

In May 2004, Council approved the Animal Control Services Strategic Plan. Endorsement of the Plan demonstrated a desire to address existing internal and external issues facing Animal Control Services with a focus on dog owner accountability and eventual self-sustaining licensing and enforcement. The Plan unfolds over a five year period and presents a number of actions to address key issues, challenges and opportunities facing the operation and to achieve a higher level of licensing compliance and increased revenue in each successive year.

A key action scheduled for the first year of the Plan is a comprehensive update of the Animal Control By-Law. The Animal Control By-Law was first drafted in the 1950s at a time when services and public expectations were significantly different from today. It has remained relatively unchanged over the years with the exception of an amended provision dealing with the threat of identified "vicious" dogs in 1987. As a result, the By-law fails to address many of the current dog-related issues faced by Animal Control Services and the general public. These issues include the conditions in which dogs may be kept; dog owner responsibility and accountability; insufficient control mechanisms for vicious dogs and inappropriate and unsafe dog behaviour; and insufficient fines for certain by-law breaches.

In recent years, the City has also received complaints concerning other animal issues unrelated to dogs. These issues involve the inhumane treatment of animals used in some rodeo activities and the deployment of guard dogs on public property. The Animal Control By-Law specifically sets regulations with respect to animals but cannot ban businesses or regulate their activities. Therefore, other by-law mechanisms must be employed to address and adequately resolve these animal concerns.

Council's approval of the Animal Control Services Strategic Plan in May 2004 included a commitment that further to a comprehensive update of the Animal Control By-Law, staff would report back on all recommended changes. This report addresses the proposed changes to the Animal Control By-law as well as changes to the Noise Control By-Law and License By-Law to address dog barking and the guard dog issue. An update report on the status of the actions completed in the Animal Control Services Strategic Plan to date will be brought forward later this year.

DISCUSSION

The goal of the Animal Control By-Law update is to address regulatory deficiencies pertaining to various dog-related issues identified by staff both in the Animal Control Services Strategic Plan (May 2004) and the "Dangerous Dogs: Protection Strategy" report (February 2005). As part of the Animal Control By-Law update, staff has conducted a comprehensive review of the Animal Control By-Law in relation to vicious dog by-laws in other Canadian and American cities. This review reveals a number of regulations and enforcement methods that may improve public safety around dogs, dog owner responsibility and accountability and the workings of Animal Control Services.

Furthermore, staff reviewed the inhumane treatment of rodeo animals and the deployment of guard dogs on public property. The guard dog issue may be addressed through an amendment to the License By-Law and the prohibition of inhumane rodeo activities may be addressed through future amendments, either to the License by-Law or the Business Prohibition By-Law.

A legal analysis of the proposed regulations and enforcement methods under the Animal Control By-Law with respect to authority under the Vancouver Charter reveals two general categories of by-law amendments. The first category includes by-law amendments that could be implemented now under existing authority. The second category includes by-law changes that require a Charter amendment from the Province. Both groups of by-law amendment categories are detailed below.

GROUP 1: BY-LAW AMENDMENTS TO BE IMPLEMENTED NOW

This group of by-law amendments can be implemented now under existing Vancouver Charter authority.

Minimum Care Standards for Dogs

Certain minimum standards of care for dogs are to be established. These regulations will require everyone who keeps a dog to ensure that dog is provided with sufficient potable water, food, shelter and sufficient exercise to maintain the dog in good health. The new By-Law will also prevent dogs from being confined in an enclosed space, including a car without adequate ventilation, and require that dogs be securely confined while being transported in an open vehicle. These provisions are consistent with by-law provisions in a number of other municipalities. A proposed minimum fine of $250 is proposed for contravention.

Inappropriate Dog Behaviour and Dog Owner Accountability

The proposed new Animal Control By-Law is to include five new provisions regulating certain inappropriate dog behaviours and dog owner accountability concerns. These provisions and corresponding minimum fines for contravention are shown in the following table:

New By-Law Regulation	Proposed Minimum Fine for Contravention
Dog upsetting or breaking into refuse container	$250
Dog riding unsecured in open truck bed	$250
Dog barking or howling	$250
Failing to confine/isolate dog with communicable disease	$250
Failing to provide sufficient enclosure to maintain dog in good health	$250

Increased Penalties and Fines

Currently, the maximum fine for every person who commits an offence against the By-Law is $2000. The current minimum fines for by-law breaches, listed in the table below, range from $25 to $200. These fines have remained the same for a long period of time and fail to provide a significant penalty. Therefore, they do not encourage compliance with the by-law. It is recommended that the existing fines be adjusted to allow for a higher minimum as outlined in table below.

Existing By-law Regulation	Existing Minimum Fine	Increased Minimum Fine
Failing to muzzle vicious dog	$200	$500
Failing to keep vicious dog securely confined	$200	$500
All other by-law breaches	$25	$250

Cost Recovery for Animal Control Services

The proposed new Animal Control By-Law will include a requirement for the complete recovery of all costs incurred by Animal Control Services. This includes a standard per diem rate charged for standard care and the recovery of actual charges for extraordinary expenses such as veterinary care. An example of a standard care situation is an impounded dog left abandoned at the Animal Control facility by its owner. The new regulation will allow the City to recover all expenses for the care of the dog from the owner while at the facility. As the care of an impounded vicious dog requires greater staff time and attention, and therefore greater cost to the City, the maintenance cost to the owner of a vicious dog would be higher.

Other Miscellaneous Changes in the New Animal Control By-Law

A. Stagger Dog License Expiry Dates throughout the Year

Currently, every owner of a dog over three months of age must purchase a dog license at the beginning of the year. The City provides a grace period to March 1st and if the dog license is purchased after March 1st, then a $10 penalty is applied. It is recommended that a new staggered dog license renewal system be implemented wherein dog license expiry dates are staggered throughout the year by the geographic areas indicated in Schedule A of the draft Animal Control By-Law in Appendix B. Much of the current administrative workload during the first three months of the year is a direct result of the existing calendar renewal system. A staggered renewal system will help to eliminate the heavy volumes in the first three months of the year by spreading the existing workload out more evenly throughout the year.

B. Regulation of Barking Dogs be moved from Noise Control By-Law to new Animal Control By-Law

Currently, the Noise Control By-Law contains a provision aimed at barking dogs which cause a disturbance. As this regulation is enforced by Animal Control Officers, it is more appropriate to include it in the Animal Control By-Law rather than the Noise Control By-Law.

C. Exclude Reference to Specific Breeds of Dog in "Vicious Dog" definition

During Council's consideration of the "Dangerous dogs: Protection Strategy" report in February 2005, many speakers were opposed to breed specific legislation designating certain dog breeds as vicious. In this report, "vicious dog" refers to a dog with a history or known propensity for very aggressive behaviour toward people or other domestic animals. It was felt that most dogs could be kind and loyal pets if raised in a caring and loving home environment. Singling out pit bull breeds under the existing "vicious dog" definition is regarded as unfair, discriminatory and unnecessary. In the past, the City has never found it necessary to rely upon the breed specific part of the vicious dog definition to deal with vicious dog issues. Therefore, the exclusion of a reference to specific breeds in the definition is recommended.

D. Expand Section 6.1 of the By-Law to include all Certified Assistance Dogs

Currently, Section 6.1 of the By-Law requires the owner or the person having the care of a dog, except for a Guide Dog in the company of a blind person, to remove any excrement deposited by the dog into a refuse container. It is recommended that the exception in this section be expanded to include those individuals who are physically disabled and require the assistance of a Service Dog.

E. Ensure Consistency between Animal Control By-Law and Parks Control By-Law

Presently, Animal Control Officers enforce the use of off-leash parks and dogs chasing wildlife/fowl in City parks/beaches under both the Animal Control By-Law and the Parks Control By-Law. It is recommended that the Animal Control By-Law be reviewed to achieve consistency with the Parks Control By-Law. Staff will report back on this issue once discussions have been held with the Parks Board.

Prohibit Guard Dogs from working on Public Property

Presently, all municipal Police Service Dogs in the Province are certified under the British Columbia Police Service Dog Standards which cover all facets of police dog training including tracking; criminal apprehension; area, building and evidence searches; obedience; and agility. To remain in service, police dogs must be continuously trained and pass the British Columbia Police Service Dog Standards validations on an annual basis.

There are no similar formalized standards for the training, deployment and validation of security guard dogs in the Province. For this reason, the capability, degree of force and obedience of security guard dogs is called into question in the following instances:

- When security guard dogs and their handlers interfere in police incidents where Police Service Dogs are deployed;
- When the deployment of security guard dogs compromises public safety on both private and public property.

In the long term, formal province-wide training standards similar to those for police service dogs are needed to resolve the issues created by security guard dogs. This requires legislative action from the provincial government. Province-wide guidelines, standards and validation processes for security guard dogs will ensure all dogs used for security purposes have at least a standard basic level of training. Furthermore, it will ensure that effective monitoring and enforcement measures are in place and all security companies adhere to the training standards. Staff recommends that Council formally request such action from the Province.

In concert, it is also necessary to amend the License By-law to prohibit the deployment of all guard dogs onto public property (City parks, streets and sidewalks). This will prevent guard dogs from patrolling on public property, interfering with police or other emergency incidents and chasing suspects on property that the dog is not securing.

Possible Prohibition of Inhumane Activities and Practices used in Rodeos

The City has been approached by certain individuals and organizations requesting that rodeos be banned from the City of Vancouver. On January 18, 2005, Council specifically requested that staff report back on whether there is a ban on rodeos in the City and if not, whether consideration could be given to the possibility of banning rodeos. Although there has not been a rodeo held in the City for quite some time, there are certain cruel and inhumane practices used in rodeos that Council may want to ensure never take place in Vancouver.

Opponents of rodeos believe that although certain rodeo events are promoted as exercises of human skill and courage in conquering untamed animals, they are nothing more than manipulative displays of human domination over animals for entertainment. Many animals used in rodeos are physically manipulated, through electric prods, spurs and bucking straps, to display irritable and frenzied behaviour/actions for the benefit of the viewing audience. In particular, the flank, bucking strap or rope used to make horses and bulls buck are clinched around their abdomens causing the animals to buck vigorously to relieve themselves of the torment.

On the other hand, rodeo supporters indicate that rodeos are valid entertainment and owners and operators take the welfare of the animals into account. They argue that the animals are well taken care of and any physical manipulation required to make the animals perform is only temporary, causing no permanent damage.

Staff believe that although certain rodeo events and attractions, such as racing and barrel competitions, cause no harm to the animals involved, other events treat animals as captive performers receiving harsh treatment through physical manipulation. For this reason, Council's approval is being sought to prohibit specific inhumane rodeo activities and practices listed and defined in Appendix D. Should Council approve such a prohibition, staff will report back with appropriate by-law amendments.

GROUP 2: BY-LAW AMENDMENTS REQUIRING CHARTER AMENDMENT FROM PROVINCE

This group of by-law amendments cannot be implemented under existing Vancouver Charter authority. Staff recommends that the City formally request the Province to amend the Vancouver Charter as soon as possible to provide sufficient authority for the City to proceed with these amendments.

Micro-Chipping Impounded Dogs

Research undertaken by staff revealed that micro-chipping is an effective means of identifying and tracking for future identification all vicious dogs. Micro-chipping involves the subcutaneous implantation of an electronic identification microchip by a licensed veterinarian at the owner's expense. City by-law provisions could require that, before a license for a vicious dog could be issued, a microchip would have to be implanted and the information be provided to Animal Control Services.

Staff will also continue to investigate other methods of identification including a procedure referred to as retinal imaging. The technology required for retinal imaging, which involves taking a picture of an individual's distinct retina for identification purposes, is still in its infancy and needs to be evaluated once it has evolved further. If other alternate identification methods are eventually found to be feasible, future by-law amendments will be considered.

Staff believes it might be appropriate to request an amendment to the Charter empowering the City to require all dogs, or any particular class of dogs, to be micro-chipped. This would allow the City to differentiate between vicious and other dogs with respect to micro-chipping.

Higher License Fees for Vicious Dogs

A higher license fee for "vicious dogs" would make the owners more accountable for the actions of their pet and allow Animal Control to recover a greater percentage of the cost currently expended to investigate and care for vicious dogs. Currently, however, the Vancouver Charter does not permit different license fees for vicious dogs.

POSSIBLE FUTURE BY-LAW AMENDMENTS

Staff acknowledge that there are additional Animal Control issues requiring attention. These include establishing a minimum age requirement for vicious dog owners, spaying and/or neutering dogs that have been impounded, requiring owners of vicious dogs to take out a liability insurance policy on their pet, display a sign on their property warning of a vicious dog on the premises and notify Animal Control when their dog has died, been sold or given away. It is important to move forward with incremental steps in order to implement the directions in the Animal Control Services Strategic Plan.

Staff will be reporting back on additional issues and the effectiveness of the changes recommended in this report.

FINANCIAL IMPLICATIONS

The new Animal Control By-Law proposes higher penalties and fines and allows Animal Control Services to recover a greater proportion of their operating expenses. Staff will report back to Council with the financial implications of these changes once the new By-Law has been implemented and the results become clear.

CONCLUSION

This report proposes a new Animal Control By-Law and amendments to the License By-Law and Noise Control By-Law.

Changes in the new Animal Control By-Law for immediate implementation include new regulations concerning dogs; cost recovery for Animal Control Services; increasing minimum fines for by-law breaches; making other miscellaneous changes and generally modernizing the By-Law. Amendments which require approval from the Province for changes to the Vancouver Charter include micro-chipping and charging higher fees for vicious dogs.

The License By-Law may be amended to prohibit guard dogs from working on public property and the Noise Control By-Law may be amended to transfer the dog barking issue to the Animal Control By-Law. Finally, Council is also requested to consider the prohibition of inhumane rodeo activities and practices.
