3. Comments:

If city were asking the respondents for solution for decision based on only simply verbal ?it will be ok? belief, if we did not even believe the basis for your decisions, how could we come up with proposition for something we do not believe?!

Isn't it City is supposed to provide hard facts to convince us instead of using verbal on the surface assumption without any depths/verification (without public review prior) as basis for decision. WE HOLD COUNCIL ACCOUNTABLE in this regard.

If you think your decision is without recourse, why you are paid to be here. Every job comes with responsibilities and here they are for you guys!

If you are willing to take this risk for whatever untold hidden benefit you'll be getting for rushing this through, please be ready to accept the consequences.

Afterall, City cannot prove the benefits as a result to the community rather than the users of the facilities. Whether community wants this facility, study/survey for usage is yet to be done. Even it were done, it would be how they city treats public input survey for this project, result is simply disposable if not favourable to the outcome City wants which is favouring the developer no matter what. A quasi judicial process is a process that should be followed for decision making based on hard facts/ tested proven studies but not simply verbal statements this project decision has been based on!

God bless the council who approves the project which does not even have concrete steps how it can be done let alone the budget! Happy Canada Day, Everyone!
