While less flashy and attention-grabbing than Jericho or the Broadway Plan, it is equally important in bringing more housing to Vancouver in a critical part of the city. To comments opposing the removal of the Fairmont building - the First Nations have told us keeping the building is in opposition to the principles of reconciliation. That should be enough. Should any wealthy benefactor decide they want to put up the millions to save the building and move it to a private piece of land, let them do so. That is not the city's responsibility, and certainly not in its interest when considering how we should be moving forward with our First Nations partners.	Mark Trischuk				No web attachments.
