But short-term AirBnB, while waiting for the site to be approved for redevelopment, will create a lot of uneasy feelings to the neighbours. We are in a quiet area and people come in and go, we just feel not safe. To cite you an example, 5 young guys had been drinking and talking loud over the midnight of a weekend and we can't even stop them. There is no people from AirBnB management side to manage these disturbance for us. We would recommend the City to review the license requirements for AirBnB, particularly for short-term. Can't let the owner(s) take the money and leave the dirt for the neighbours to live with.	Gilbert Wong	Shaughnessy
