Zoning that can actively respond to needs in the community that might not have been predicted years ago is an important tool for managing risks that can undermine societal stability and continuance. Please continue to actively respond to what is a dire situation that has the potential to become much worse if it is not given proper attention. I think focusing on the phrase, "a rising tide raises all ships" might be an appropriate moniker for these types of zoning policies.	Cameron Fehr	Mount Pleasant
