SUBJECT: Proposed Amendment to Sewer and Watercourse By-law No. 8093

Recommendations

- A. THAT Council approve, in principle, proposed amendments to the Sewer and Watercourse By-law No. 8093, as generally shown in Appendix A, to support increased compliance.
- B. THAT Council instruct the Director of Legal Services to bring forward for enactment the necessary Sewer and Watercourse By-law amendments, generally, as set out in Appendix A.

Purpose and Executive Summary

This report seeks Council approval to amend the Sewer & Watercourse By-law to allow the City Engineer to issue notices and orders under the authority of the Sewer and Watercourse By-law.

The Sewer and Watercourse By-law No. 8093 (the By-law) does not currently contain the authority to issue a notice or order to a person who contravenes the By-law to come into compliance. The proposed amendment will give the City the authority to issue notices and orders to support improved compliance with the By-law. These authorities exist in other City by-laws including the Drinking Water Conservation By-law and the Solid Waste By-law and are authorized for all by-laws by the Vancouver Charter.

Council Authority/Previous Decisions

As outlined under Sections 336A and 336B of the Vancouver Charter Council may, by by-law, empower staff to order or direct any person to cease or refrain from any work that is in contravention of any by-law or to order that work be completed in order to come into conformance with a by-law. (Please see Appendix B for current Charter language under Sections 336A and 336B).

City Manager's Comments

The City Manager concurs with the foregoing recommendations.

Context and Background

The City of Vancouver's sewer system provides essential and reliable sewer and drainage services that protect public health, the environment, and property through the collection, conveyance, management, and treatment of wastewater and storm water.

The City's sewer system consists of 2,140 km of sewer mains, 93,000 service connections, 40,000+ catch basins and 24 pump stations, which work together to convey sanitary flow (wastewater from homes and businesses) and storm water (surface run-off from private and public property and groundwater) to regional treatment facilities operated by Metro Vancouver.

The Sewer & Watercourse By-law No. 8093 contains critical requirements that must be met to ensure effective delivery of these essential services including setting standards for discharges to sanitary and stormwater systems, and to support growth and development.

Discussion

The Engineering Services Department actively works with property owners to resolve contraventions to the Sewer and Watercourse By-law No. 8093; however staff have encountered scenarios where a property is not compliant with the By-law and the property owner is unwilling to resolve the issue. The ability to resolve contraventions to the Sewer and Watercourse By-law No. 8093 could be improved by creating new compliance authorities within the By-law.

Current options available to resolving a contravention to the By-law are as follows:

- Relying on those in contravention of the By-law to willingly comply when they are notified of the infraction.
- b) Asking the court to fine a person in contravention of the By-law, or
- c) Seeking a court injunction to resolve a contravention.

These options have posed challenges for gaining compliance as relying on fines or voluntary compliance can be ineffective in resolving issues, and options relying on the court system are resource intensive for all parties. At present the only method of compelling an owner to bring their property into compliance is by prosecution and/or seeking a court injunction.

To enhance compliance with the By-law, staff recommend amendments to create new compliance authorities, similar to other by-laws, to issue notices and orders to a property to come into compliance with the By-law. These enforcement options already exist in other City by-laws including the Drinking Water Conservation By-law and Solid Waste By-law and are authorized for all by-laws by the Vancouver Charter. These authorities would provide options to escalate issues of non-compliance in advance of seeking court resolutions.

Financial Implications

There are no financial implications associated with this report's recommendations.

Legal Implications

The proposed by-law changes are authorized by the Vancouver Charter.
