To forcibly remove it from this location is no different than the removal of the Hogan's Alley residents by force, back in that dark period of Vancouver's history, that ultimately lead to the involuntary displacement of an entire black community. Arrangements were made to honour this history by preserving the shrine, in order to remind Vancouverites of the importance of its black heritage and its place in this particular moment of music history. The city of Vancouver must intervene to prevent the destruction of the building that housed Nora Hendrix's restaurant and to uphold all obligations to the founder of the Jimi Hendrix Shrine, Vincent Fodera, including the return of all his property or the restoration of the shrine. | John Marinakis | Grandview-Woodland | |
