Purpose built rental housing is limited, and the options that do exist are often out of reach or highly competitive. Increasing the supply of rental homes is an important step toward making Vancouver a place where more people who work in and around the city can actually live. I also support the inclusion of small hotels in this proposal. Vancouver continues to face a shortage of hotel space, which affects not only tourism but also residents across the region. Having more hotel options makes it easier for friends and family to visit and helps reduce pressure on other forms of short term accommodation. This proposal builds on existing commercial areas, allows for moderate increases in height, and focuses on delivering rental housing while maintaining current protections for renters. It is a straightforward way to create more homes and more places to stay without requiring major changes to established neighbourhoods. I encourage Council to support this approach and move it forward. It would make a meaningful difference for people like me who want to live in Vancouver and remain connected to the region.	Michael Drewry	I do not live in Vancouver
